Support Raising, Soul Care, and the Story You Secretly Believe

Stories are powerful

- What is one of your favorite books, TV shows, or movies?
- What is one of your favorite Biblical stories?
- What draws you to those stories?
- What do they reveal about God? About you?
- Stories feed (or starve) your soul.

7 types of fundraisers

- Serial
- Fuzzy
- Clear and focused
- Disappointed
- Mired in the mud
- Comatose (or asleep)
- Waiting until . . .

The story behind the 7 types of fundraisers

- Serial (I have to hustle)
- Fuzzy (Support raising is unknowable)
- Clear and focused (I am made for a purpose)
- Disappointed (Why bother, it won't matter anyway)
- Mired in the mud (Ha! Support raising is the luxury of the rich or less busy)
- Comatose (or asleep) (Clueless . . . Wait, I can participate?)
- Waiting until . . . (Stalled because the perfection I seek never quite arrives)

A better story for the 7 types of fundraisers

- Serial —> Chapters (I can harness my creativity.)
- Fuzzy —> Coming into Focus (Support raising involves skills I can learn.)
- Clear and focused —> Mature Clarity (I am made for a purpose that can expand into the unknown as God continues to mature me.)
- Disappointed —> Rising Hope (God sees me. God cares about me.)
- Mired in the mud —> On the Road (God can use my fish and loaves.)
- Comatose (or asleep) — Awake and Engaged (Did you know . . . ?! That's so cool!)
- Waiting until . . . —> Embracing Good Enough (It's so freeing to know when to seek excellence versus good enough.)

Why tell better stories?

- The elements of a good story
- God loves good stories
- Stories feed or starve our souls!
- The stories we believe form us
- What fund raising stories are you believing? How could you tell a better story?
